Dear EPA -

Your plan is very weak tea. The amount of sediment that your propose to dredge from the Willamette is far too little. You need to be much closer to 1000 acres of dredging to lift the fish advisory for contaminants found in the harbor area.

From what the community has seen, this proposal seems made for industry - and to keep their effort and costs to a minimum. You use far too much "monitored natural recovery" and your institutional controls are just unfortunate.

Please craft a final cleanup plan that includes much more robust. If not, you are just another agency that has failed the public under pressure from industry and politicians in the name of saving a few bucks.

Do more to protect this river for the long-haul please!!!!
